

REACHING THE TOP IN BUSINESS AND LIFE

What does climbing Mt. Everest have to do with achieving success in business?

Everything! Putting a team on top of the tallest peak in the world requires courage, commitment, preparation, sharp decision making and risk management skills – all performed in an environment of uncertainty.

After reaching the summit of Mt. Everest, the highest point on Earth at 29,029 feet, Paul and Denise Fejtek joined a small and extremely elite group of climbers who have scaled all of the Seven Summits – the highest peaks on each of the seven continents.

This dynamic husband & wife team will share their exciting story with you about their Seven Summits quest, and what it takes to train, prepare, and select the right team to help you get to the top. Their media rich presentation also includes high definition video from the summit of Mt. Everest, and will transport you to a place a rare few ever experience. Along the way you'll hear some exciting stories and lessons found in Paul's recently released book "Steps to the Summit – Reaching the Top in Business and Life." <http://StepsToTheSummit.com>

ABOUT THE SPEAKERS:

Paul has balanced his outdoor pursuits over the years while working full-time as a Managing Director at an Irvine-based investment bank where he specializes in mergers & acquisitions representing owners of privately held companies in the food & beverage, oil & gas, and other industries. He completed an $89 million all cash sale of a medical device company in which he managed the transaction in part by satellite phone from Antarctica and later at Mt. Everest Base Camp. Paul received the Most Inspirational Athlete Award from the Challenged Athletes Foundation and along with Denise, both were named by OC Metro Magazine in their annual list of the 25 Hottest People in Orange County. The two were also featured on NBC News, ABC News, Fox News and The Today Show. They are frequently keynote speakers for professional business groups, corporations and have been honored to share their inspirational message on the prestigious TED platform. Denise earned a Business Management Degree and was a travel consultant prior to her project management role at a publicly-traded engineering firm. Combining those experiences Denise is now the "Chief Experience Officer" of Step Outdoor Adventures, LLC leading outdoor adventure-based retreats for corporate leadership development. Denise is the first woman in history to complete the Peak to Heat Double - the combination of reaching the summit of Mt. Everest and completing the Hawaii Ironman in Kona.
